

My plans for my future career aspirations are wide and diverse. I am very ambitious and I have aspirations that cross over between several career fields. With that being said the main field I can classify most of my interests under is Journalism. My goal is to attain a successful position in the field of journalism with this portfolio, specifically within the world of online photographic journalism. I have spent the past years studying the skills and information I would need to prepare me for a career in this field. I have even taken several extracurricular internships to further improve my hands on skills within the field. I have reflected the various fruits of my labour within this portfolio and I hope it will help me attain the dream position I want. I have included a diverse range of sample works from my past along with my resume and linkedIn information. I chose to include working moving samples of the photography I took as eye-catching previews of my previous works with links to the written samples underneath. I felt that the lively quality of my photography works would not be best reflected or expected from a simple hyperlink or button so I chose to display some of them on the site before the links. I hope this will set myself apart from others in my field and showcase my unique talents and skillset that may not be seen in other job candidates. Overall I think this portfolio site would give a future interviewer a good impression of my capabilities before I arrived for the interview and set me apart from the rest of the interview pool.
